The University of Kentucky is located in Lexington, Kentucky. It is the largest university in the state and was founded in 1865. The wildcat is the official mascot for the athletic teams and royal blue and white have been the official colors since 1882.

A founding member of the Southeastern Conference, they have won 7 NCAA championships. Adolph Rupp was hired as the basketball coach for the university in 1939 and continued with the team until 1972. The Wildcats won four NCAA crowns during those years. After that, they won again in 1978 under Joe B. Hall, in 1996 under Rick Pitino, and in 1998 under Tubby Smith.

In addition to their 7 NCAA Men's Division I Basketball titles, they also have 43 SEC regular season titles and 1988 all-time wins. Kentucky also leads other schools in its all-time winning percentage.

The team's home stadium is Rupp Arena. The mass of fans that attend the home games fill the streets of Lexington on game days.

The University of Kentucky cheerleaders have had plenty of wins, too. They have acquired 17 UCA Division I-A Cheerleading Championships-more than any other school. The WE even aired a reality television show about them.
